

Students of GC University Hyderabad Visited Department of Mathematics at NED University of Engineering & Technology

It was our pleasure to receive students and faculty of GC University Hyderabad at the Department of Mathematics of NED University. The aim of this visit was to exchange the knowledge and ideas related to the innovative methods of teaching and learning in both institutions. The tour also included the visit to laboratories and classrooms of the department and a fruitful interaction of students and faculty of both institutions. A lecture was specially arranged for the GC students by NED University senior faculty member. The expected outcome of this tour will be further academic and research collaboration between the two institutions and the academic and research networking among the students and faculty of both sides. The Pro-Vice-Chancellor of NED University and the Dean (Information Sciences & Humanities) appreciated the efforts of the Head of the Mathematics Department to organize this event.
