

The mission of the programme is ‘to prepare mathematicians who not only able to do research, but able to help and guide others to use mathematics as a helping tool in their respective fields’.

The programme is designed to create an encouraging environment for learning and doing research by providing facilities to conduct, evaluate and report meaningful research under the supervision of a faculty mentor and add to the already existing scientific knowledge along with learning the useful personal and technical skills needed to work independently as well as in a team.